

RENTER'S HANDBOOK ON MOLD

Bad news: you've discovered mold in your rental housing.

Good news: mold and mildew are common in the Pacific Northwest, and most varieties of mold and mildew do not pose a risk to your health. Many people think that any black-colored mold or mildew they find is a toxic variety of mold known as "black mold." However, toxic black mold is very rare. Most of the black-colored mold that you find is likely to be common mildew, which can be cleaned up without much difficulty.

More good news: your landlord is legally required to keep your rental "habitable," which is legalese for livable. That means that your landlord must make any repairs necessary to stop the growth of mold in your unit.

More bad news: the tenant also has legal obligations. You are required by law and by your rental agreement to do what you can to prevent mold growth. Often, that means that you need to ventilate your rental, run exhaust fans, keep items from touching the walls, and reduce moisture in the air.

This packet contains information about how to respond to a mold issue in your rental housing. If you follow the steps suggested in exactly the order they are laid out and keep good records of all of the steps you take, it is more likely that you and your landlord will be able to reach a good resolution of the problem.

It is very important throughout the process to document all mold problems with photographs and to keep records of your written communications with your landlord.

This packet contains the following:

- Information about mold and mildew
- Information about tenants' responsibilities for cleaning up and preventing the growth of mold and mildew
- Guidelines for demanding repairs
- Checklist for reporting mold issue to your landlord and demanding assistance with cleanup
- Letters and forms to use in communicating with your landlord about mold

MOLD AND MILDEW INFORMATION

- Mold and mildew grow in damp environments. Water can intrude into your rental through the outside – because of a leaking roof, pipes, or other problem with the building. Water can also build up from the inside, because of steam from showers, heat from cooking, and other normal activities.

- If there is water coming from the outside, that needs to be fixed first. Once the problem has been fixed, then the inside needs to be dried out by using fans or a dehumidifier.

- If the moisture is coming from the inside, then it's important to improve air circulation by opening windows, using exhaust fans, and increasing the temperature inside. The humidity in your house should be under 50%.

- A common source of mold/ mildew is condensation. This happens when the outside is cold, the inside is warm, and there's a lot of moisture in the air. (Basically, winter in Oregon!) If conditions are right, water drops will form on the wall or window that is next to the cold air. Then, if the water isn't cleaned up, mold or mildew can grow on the wall, the window, or anything that comes in contact with the wall or window.

TENANT'S RESPONSIBILITIES:

A tenant has certain responsibilities when mold/ mildew appears anywhere in the rental. The tenant should follow these three steps:

- 1) Report
- 2) Respond
- 3) Prevent

1. Report

The first step in responding to the mold problem is to report it to your landlord in writing as soon as you notice it. That way, there's a record of the issue. You can use Letter 1 (included in this packet) to notify your landlord of the mold/ mildew. Send the letter through regular mail (not registered or certified mail, and not email). Make sure to keep a copy of the letter for your records.

You should also take pictures of the mold and store them so that the date is recorded. If you take the pictures with a phone or digital camera, the date should be automatically recorded. Another way to record the date is to send an email to yourself with the photos as attachments. That way you can prove when the photos were taken. If you take the pictures with a conventional camera, make sure to keep the envelope from the photo developer, so you can prove when the photos were printed.

If the mold/ mildew was caused by an obvious leak or other problem with the building, then your landlord must fix the problem. However, if the mold/ mildew growth is on an exterior wall (meaning a wall that has one side on the outside), a window, or an object touching an exterior wall or window (like a couch or a bed, or curtains) one source of the problem is probably condensation. The tenant should take the first step in responding to condensation.

2. Respond

The second step is to clean up the mold.

Cleaning up mold/ mildew is actually pretty simple. However, people with breathing problems, compromised immune systems (people with HIV/ AIDS, some cancers, and pregnant women), or severe allergies to mold should not participate in cleanup activities. If you have one of these health conditions, you should ask a friend, a family member, or your landlord for assistance in cleaning up the mold/ mildew. If you have a disability and your landlord refuses to help with cleanup, you can use Form C (included in this packet) to ask for assistance.

Tips for clean-up:

- Use gloves when cleaning
- If there is a lot of mold/ mildew, tie a scarf or towel over your nose and mouth
- If possible, wear goggles or other eye protection while cleaning

- Take lots of breaks in areas with plenty of fresh air and ventilation

If the mold/ mildew is on a hard surface (walls, windows, floors, doors) then you can use soap and warm water to clean it off. There are also commercial products available specifically for mold. Just wipe the area down, throw out the sponge or rag you used for cleaning, and then (this is important) let the area dry. If necessary, put a heater or fan nearby to make sure that the area dries out.

If the mold/ mildew is on something soft, like fabric or upholstery, you can wash the item in hot water and dry it thoroughly. If that's not possible, you can try wiping the item off and then drying the item out (for instance, use a hair dryer on furniture). That can be enough, if the mold/ mildew hasn't penetrated too deeply. However, in many cases, you may have to throw the item away.

If mold/ mildew has penetrated an item so that you have to throw it away, use Form A (included in this packet) to make a record of the item or items and about how much money the item was worth. You should also take a photo of the item before you throw it away.

If you believe that mold is in an area you can't reach – for example, inside a wall, under the floor, or in a crawlspace – let your landlord know using Letter 1. It is the landlord's responsibility to clean those areas.

3. Prevent

Once you've cleaned up the mold/ mildew and thrown out anything that was ruined, take these steps to help prevent a future build-up:

- Keep your unit ventilated. Crack a window once a day. Run the exhaust fan when you take a shower and for at least 15-30 minutes after. If the exhaust fan doesn't work, tell your landlord in writing.
- Keep your unit heated.
- Move all furniture at least 2 inches away from the wall.
- Run a towel along the bottom edge of every window at least once a week in winter to remove condensation.
- If necessary, use a dehumidifier to reduce moisture in the air. (Ask your landlord to reimburse you for the cost. If the landlord refuses, you may be able to deduct the cost of a dehumidifier from the rent. Read through all of the steps in the next section first!)

Once you have reported the mold/ mildew to your landlord, cleaned it up, and taken steps to prevent its re-growth, if the mold comes back it is your landlord's responsibility to fix the problem.

GETTING REPAIRS MADE: STEP BY STEP

If you continue to have mold issues after taking steps to clean up and prevent mold, or if there is water leaking in to your rental from outside, you need to ask your landlord to make repairs. Here are the steps to follow.

The most important thing to remember when asking your landlord for repairs is that you must make the request in writing. The law provides certain legal remedies to tenants, but they all require a tenant to be able to prove that a written complaint was made.

➤ Step One: Letter 1

If you've been using this packet all along, you should have already sent Letter 1 to notify your landlord of a mold problem. If you haven't notified your landlord in writing about the problem yet, do it now. Use Letter 1, or write your own. Any letter that you send must include these elements:

- Your name and address
- Landlord's name and address
- Date you're sending the letter
- Specific information about the problem
- Deadline for repairs – at least ten days from the date of the letter

Either give the letter to your landlord personally or send it through regular first class mail – NOT certified or registered mail, as those can take much longer to arrive. Be sure to keep a copy of the letter.

➤ Step Two: Photographs

Take pictures of the problem and save them somewhere safe. Either print them out or attach them to an email that you send to yourself.

➤ Step Three: Access for repairs

Give your landlord the time stated in your letter to provide repairs. You must allow your landlord access to your rental to make the repairs. If you don't allow access, the landlord is not obligated to complete the repairs and could potentially terminate your rental agreement

➤ Step Four: Letter 2

If your landlord does not fix the problem on time, or if the repairs don't solve the problem, send Letter 2, included in this packet, or write your own. Your letter must include:

- Your name and address
- Landlord's name and address
- Date you're sending the letter
- Date of Letter 1
- Specifics about the ongoing problem
- Statement that you will deduct money from the rent to pay for repairs or for a dehumidifier if the repairs are not complete within one week from the time you send Letter 2.

You can deduct up to $300 from the rent to pay for minor repairs, including paying for a dehumidifier, but first you must tell your landlord in writing. You CANNOT legally deduct for repairs without telling your landlord in writing first. You also must give your landlord a receipt for any amount that you plan to deduct from the rent.

The law governing deductions for minor repairs is ORS 90.368. Oregon landlord-tenant laws are online at https://www.oregonlegislature.gov/bills_laws/ors/ors090.html

➤ Step Five: Reporting

If the minor repairs or the dehumidifier does not solve the problem, you should consider reporting the problem to local code enforcement. Many cities have a municipal code that requires landlords to maintain buildings according to a certain standard. You should look for code enforcement in your city, either by looking it up on the internet or calling your city hall to ask for help contacting code enforcement.

If a code inspector comes to the property, you must allow them to enter to examine the rental for mold. Ask for a copy of any report they produce and keep it with your records.

If your landlord is refusing to help or is saying that there is no problem, you can also consider hiring your own mold inspector. However, that can be expensive. If the inspector does find mold and concludes that it was not caused by you, you can deduct the cost of the inspection from the rent. But if the inspector does not find mold or concludes that it was caused by the tenant, you would have to pay for the inspection.

➤ Step Six: Alternate housing

If your landlord is not fixing the problem and you believe that the mold is causing a serious threat to your health, safety, or property, you may need to temporarily move out of your rental. You should only do this if you have some kind of written proof that staying in your rental is dangerous to you or your family. That proof could be

- A letter from a health care provider
- A report from code enforcement or another official agency
- A report from a private inspector

If you believe that you are in danger if you stay, you should send Letter 3 to your landlord. That letter gives you three options. You can

- 1) Terminate your rental agreement with 48 hours' notice;
- 2) Move into a motel and deduct the cost of the motel from the rent; OR
- 3) Pay partial rent to make up for the reduced value of your rental.

Again, you cannot legally withhold rent using this option unless you have proof that you have given your landlord a written notice about the problem and told the landlord that you intend to withhold rent.

➤ Step Seven: Legal Consequences

If you do end up withholding rent from your landlord, the landlord may issue you a nonpayment notice or a termination notice. If that happens, you should talk to a lawyer.

After the deadline in the termination notice passes, your landlord can take you to court to try to evict you. BUT, if you have followed these steps exactly and kept copies of all of the required paperwork, you should be able to prove that you deducted rent as allowed by law. This will be a legal defense against an eviction.

For free legal assistance for low-income individuals, you can call Legal Aid Services of Oregon or the Oregon Law Center. In Salem, you can call the Oregon Law Center at 503-485-0696 or Legal Aid Services at 503-581-5265. For statewide resources, visit <http://oregonlawhelp.org/resource/oregon-legal-aid-offices>

Legal services are only available to people whose income is at or below 125% of the federal poverty level, which you can check at <https://aspe.hhs.gov/poverty-guidelines>. (For one person in 2016, the income limit is $14,850 per year.) However, you may be able to qualify if you have other expenses. If you qualify for public assistance – SNAP, TANF, or SSI – you probably qualify for legal services.

If your income is too high to qualify for legal services, you can contact the Oregon State Bar's lawyer referral service at 800-452-7636.

There is also information and assistance available to help you represent yourself in court. For more information, go to your county law library or visit <http://courts.oregon.gov/OJD/docs/selfhelp/civiltrialbrochurefinal2.pdf>

Letter #1

Date: _____

Dear Landlord:

I am writing to notify you of a serious mold problem in my rental unit. I have identified mold growing in the following locations:

I have already taken the following steps to remedy the problem, but the mold is still there:

- Moved items away from the wall
- Dried condensation on interior windows
- Run the bathroom fan

I know that an untreated mold infestation can create structural damage, property damage, and health problems. Accordingly, I am requesting that you help to resolve this issue as quickly as possible. The following personal property has already been damaged by the mold:

Please contact me by _____ (10 days from date of letter) and provide repairs no later than _____ (14 days from date of letter).

I know that ORS 90.385 does not permit a landlord to retaliate against a tenant who requests repairs.

Thank you,

_____ (tenant name)

_____ (tenant address)

Letter #2

Date: _____

Dear Landlord:

I wrote to you on _____ to notify you of a serious mold problem in my rental unit. However, the problem has not been solved. I have identified mold regrowth in the following locations:

Because of the risk the mold poses to my health and to my property, I have informed the following authorities or agencies about the problem:

ORS 90.368 permits a tenant to repair habitability problems that cost less than $300 and deduct the cost from the rent. With this letter, I am notifying you that if you do not solve the problem by _____ (10 days from date of letter) I will purchase a dehumidifier, retain the receipt, and deduct the cost from the rent. If that does not solve the problem, I will pursue other legal options as permitted by ORS 90.360 or 90.365.

If my property is damaged as a result of the mold, I have the right to seek reimbursement from you in small claims court.

Thank you,

_____ (tenant name)

_____ (tenant address)

Letter #3

Date: _____

Dear Landlord:

I wrote to you on _____ and _____ to notify you of a serious mold problem in my rental unit. The problem has not been solved.

The ongoing mold infestation represents a serious risk to my health, safety, and/ or property and places you in violation of the rental agreement and ORS 90.320. I have provided you with reasonable time and reasonable access to fix the problem. If repairs are not complete by _____ (at least 3 days from date of letter) I am notifying you that I will seek the following remedy or remedies as permitted by ORS 90.365:

Terminate the rental agreement

Recover damages for diminished rental value of the unit and deduct damages from the rent

Procure substitute housing until the problem is solved. I will be excused from paying rent during this period and can recover any cost in excess of the rent as damages.

Thank you,

_____ (tenant name)

_____ (tenant address)

NOTIFICATION OF RENT WITHHOLDING ORS 90.368

ORS 90.368 permits a tenant to deduct up to $300 from the rent for repair of minor habitability defects. On _____ (date of Letter 2) I informed you that if the mold problem in my unit was not solved I would purchase a dehumidifier to address the problem. On _____ (date of purchase) I bought a dehumidifier for $ _____ (total cost of purchase). The receipt is attached to this notice.

I am therefore deducting $ _____ (cost of dehumidifier) from my rent for this month. I am enclosing payment for $ _____ (monthly rent minus cost of dehumidifier).

Thank you,

_____ (Tenant name)

_____ (Tenant address)

REQUEST FOR REASONABLE ACCOMODATION

The federal Fair Housing Act requires landlords to make reasonable accommodations for tenants who have disabilities. With this form, I am requesting that you make a reasonable accommodation for my disability so that I can continue to access my housing.

I am requesting that you make an adjustment or exception to this rule or policy:

The rule or policy is related to my disability in this way:

I have attached documentation from my health care provider.

Thank you,

_____ (Tenant name)

_____ (Tenant address)
